February Mini Highlight

Celebrate Black History Month with Education Abroad!

This month we have a few events to highlight the experiences of the diverse body of students we've helped go abroad, and provide helpful perspectives to Black students wishing to study abroad in the future.

Making Black History Abroad Panel & Workshop

Making Black History Abroad is an event where Black students at UA who have studied abroad can share their experiences with other Black students aspiring to study overseas in the future.

This initiative aims to create a more comfortable environment for Black students considering studying abroad in unfamiliar places.

Being Black Abroad Podcast

In honor of Black History Month, this episode goes into detail on what it's like being Black abroad!

EDUCATION ABROAD PRESENTS:

TRAVELING TIDE

WITH
SAMANTHA SCHUMANN

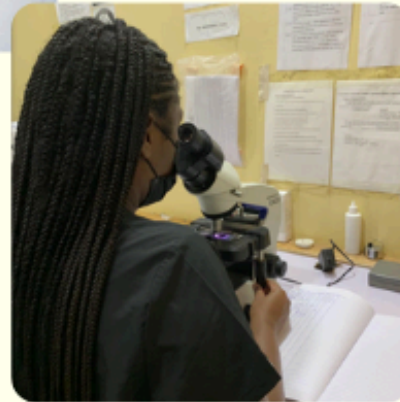

"I learned so much about myself and the culture, history, and lifestyle of [where I studied abroad]. [It] has left me with so much knowledge that I am more than grateful for."

-Brianna Mills, UA in Ghana

"I feel like I gained a real sense of what traveling to a new country is like. It's not all rainbows and butterflies but there's so much to be learned about the place you're in and about your own sense of independence. I was also grateful to be in such a good group..."

-Asia Pleasants, Roll Tide Worldwide
